A Day at Green Hill School

Green Hill School is a small secondary school in the countryside. It has about 400 students, and the teachers know most of them by name. The school building is modern, with bright classrooms, a large library, and two science labs.

Classes start at 8:15 in the morning. Most students arrive by bus, but some walk or cycle to school. They usually have six lessons each day. The subjects include English, maths, science, history, geography, and art. Many students enjoy PE because they can play football, basketball, or badminton in the sports hall.

At 10:30, there is a 20-minute break. Students can buy snacks from the canteen or talk to friends in the playground. Lunchtime is at 12:30, and the school offers both hot meals and sandwiches. After lunch, there are more lessons until 3:15.

Some students join after-school clubs. There is a music club, a chess club, and a reading club in the library. These clubs help students improve their skills and make new friends.

Most students like Green Hill School because it is friendly and the teachers are helpful. They also like the variety of activities they can do after lessons.
