Reading: My Ideal Job

My ideal job is to be a graphic designer who creates logos, posters, and websites for different companies. I think this is better than working in an office that has no creativity. I prefer working from home because I can design in a quiet space and choose my own schedule.

To be a good graphic designer, you need to have good communication skills, which help you understand what the client wants. I also enjoy working in a team when I need new ideas, but most of the time I like working on my own because it helps me focus. I don't like working long hours because I get tired and lose inspiration.

Another important thing is having a good manager, who gives clear instructions and supports your work. I can't stand bosses who are rude or never listen. I prefer a part-time schedule in busy months so I have more time to learn new design skills.

Of course, I want my job to be well-paid, which means I can have a comfortable life and save money for the future. For me, the perfect job is one that makes me happy and lets me be creative every day.

Comprehension Questions

1. General idea question:
What is the writer's ideal job?

LIVEWORKSHEETS

2. Multiple-choice questions

1. Why does the writer prefer working from home?
   A) Because it's quieter and more flexible
   B) Because they like to travel
   C) Because they don't have internet at work
2. Which skill is important for a graphic designer?
   A) Cooking skills
   B) Good communication skills
   C) Driving skills
3. What kind of manager does the writer like?
   A) A manager who supports and talks a lot
   B) A manager who supports but that is strict
   C) A manager who supports and listens

3. True/False sentences

1. The writer enjoys working on their own.
2. The writer likes working long hours.
3. The writer thinks a well-paid job is important.

LIVEWORKSHEETS