"Alex's Improvement"

Alex is a 14-year-old student who has problems in English. He sometimes feels sad because his grades are low. He usually plays video games instead of studying. One day, his teacher tells him that he can improve. He listens carefully to the teacher.

The next day, Alex decides to change his habits. He always wakes up early to review vocabulary. He usually writes new words in his notebook. Sometimes, he asks his friend for help. He never ignores his homework again.

Alex begins to read short stories in English. He usually spends 20 minutes reading every morning. He sometimes watches videos to practice pronunciation. He always repeats the new words out loud. He never gives up.

After one week, Alex feels more confident. He usually understands more words in class. He sometimes answers questions. He always pays attention to the teacher. He never sleeps in class anymore.

Alex creates a study schedule. He always follows his plan every afternoon. He usually studies English, math, and history. Sometimes, he takes a short break to rest. He never wastes time like before.

His parents are proud of him. They usually support him with his studies. They always prepare a quiet place for him to study. Sometimes they ask about his homework. They never stop encouraging him.

Alex's teacher notices his progress. She always tells him, "Good job!" She usually gives him extra exercises. Sometimes, she asks him to explain answers to others. She never ignores his effort.
