Dear J. M.,

You and your boyfriend must agree on how you spend your money before you get married. If you both _____ that there is a problem, you could probably _____ an answer. He should _____ your idea of saving some money. And you shouldn't always _____ to go out and have fun. Don't _____ that talking can really help.

Good luck! – Harriet

B What advice would you give J. M.? Read the reply and make corrections.

Dear J. M.,

I understand your concern. Relationships need open communication and shared goals, especially when it come to money. If he keeps avoiding the topic, you may need to has a serious talk about your future together. Maybe consider going to financial counseling as an couple. If he still refuses to change or listen, you should ask yourself whether this are the kind of partner you want long term. Good luck!
