Example Every year, millions of monarch butterflies flyfrom..... eastern parts of the USA and Canada to the forests of central Mexico.

7 The journeyabout 4,000 kilometers. The butterflies 8leave the Canadian forest during the winter because 9 there aren'tplants for them to eat and the weather is too cold. They start leaving in October, although they sometimes start 10if it's very cold.

11 When the butterfliesin Mexico, they spend the winter resting on trees in the cool Mexican mountains. The butterflies 12 go back to the same oyamel fir treesyear. In the spring, when the weather is warmer, the butterflies fly back to the USA and Canada again. Monarch butterflies are an important part of the ecosystem 13they are good for plants and flowers, and their 14 caterpillars provide foodbirds.

15 Theremore oyamel fir trees, but today some people
16 are cutting down the treesroads, houses and farms.
We need to protect the oyamel fir trees for the monarch butterflies.
