Dancing 'old heart-throbs' become Tik Tok sensation

Tokyo: Showing off their awkward moves in shirts, ties and brightly-coloured belly warmers, four men in their 50s and 60s have become Japan's (0) later TikTok sensation.

The group's mission? To promote their small countryside town, (9) where population is in decline, through dance routines to pop tunes that fans call "adorable". Since their first post in February, the videos (10) has been viewed more than 16 million times. The four call (11) themself "ojiqun" – a slang word used by young people that mixes ojisan, which means "old men" in Japanese, and "kyun", meaning "heart-throb". They wear suit trousers, smart shoes and belly-warmer bands and keep a (12) straightest face even when they struggle to stay in time.

One of the members, 52-year-old Takumi Shirase, runs an IT firm and a (13) garden company when not on TikTok. He said he had created ojiqun with his friends to try and put the rural town of Wake, in western Japan's Okayama region, back on (14) an map. Wake currently has around 14,000 residents, and Shirase said his old primary school (15) have closed due to lack of demand.

But with more than 34,000 TikTok followers, "we hope to encourage people to come to Wake, either as (16) tours or as new residents," Shirase said. — AFP

Read the text and answer questions 17 – 24.

Sean paid a visit to Sekinchan and found it to be one of Malaysia's best-hidden gems.

The capital of Malaysia, Kuala Lumpur, might be one of the most impressive cities in Malaysia, however, after spending a few days in its insufferable noise, pollution, and crowds, we knew we had to go somewhere more peaceful. After tons of research, we finally settled on Sekinchan, a small fishing village. From Kuala Lumpur by road, it takes 1 hour 30 minutes.

If you don't have your own car, you may want to consider renting a bicycle from one of the shops in town to explore the surrounding area. Although Sekinchan is only a small fishing village, its most iconic feature is the lush paddy fields that stretch farther than the eye can see.

We decided to go cycling through the paddy fields. We spent the morning cycling up and down these picturesque paddy fields and enjoying the simple things in life. When we had enough, we went to cool off in the Pantai Redang, Sekinchan's only beach. Not only was this beach peaceful, but we caught glimpses of local life and discovered the Sekinchan Wishing Tree, one of the best places to visit in Sekinchan. We couldn't finish a visit to a famed fishing village without trying their seafood. We ended the night at Wan Lau Seafood, sampling some delicious oyster egg omelette and clams, before returning to our hotel.

If you plan on visiting Sekinchan, we recommend you stay at Padi Box as we did. It is a unique accommodation in Sekinchan made with only recycled freight containers. Not only is this place eco-friendly, but the creative use of the freight containers makes it a very decorative place! I visited in March and found the weather was consistently hot and humid.
