Reading & Summary – The Silk Road

Paragraph 1

The Silk Road was a long network of trade routes that joined Asia and Europe. It was not one road, but many paths through deserts and mountains. Merchants traveled with camels and sold silk, tea, and spices from the East. In return, Europe gave glass, wool, and silver. The journey was not easy, but trade made people richer and connected different cultures.

Summary 1:

The Silk Road was a (1) _____ of routes between Asia and Europe. Merchants carried silk, tea, and (2) _____ from the East. Europe traded (3) _____, wool, and silver.

Paragraph 2

The Silk Road also brought new ideas and religions. Paper and printing came from China, while Buddhism and Islam spread across Asia. One of the most famous travelers was Marco Polo. He left Venice when he was young and went to China. Later, he wrote a book that made Europeans interested in the East.

Summary 2:

The Silk Road also spread (4) _____ and religions like Buddhism. A famous traveler, (5) _____, visited China and wrote about the East.
