"The Surprise at the Festival"

Last weekend, the International Student Film Festival took place in Buenos Aires. Everything started smoothly: the audience was excited, the films were well-prepared, and the organizers were confident.

However, during the second day, a big storm caused trouble. While the directors were giving interviews, the electricity suddenly went out, and the hall was completely dark. Some people laughed, others panicked. Luckily, the technicians worked quickly, and the festival continued.

The biggest surprise happened at the award ceremony. Everyone thought the popular comedy would win, but instead, a small independent documentary received the main prize. The young director was shocked. "I didn't expect this at all!" she said. The audience stood up and clapped loudly for several minutes. It was a night to remember.
