If I had my way, I'd encourage children to take a walk around the neighbourhood. I recently heard of a school that introduced a daily mile-long walk for all their students, and teachers said it made the kids more focused in class. It might also show our children that there's a lot of benefit and enjoyment to be had simply from walking around outside.
Stuart B.

3 The writer is of the opinion that if children are encouraged to walk, they will
A go for walks only during school hours.
B use their skills to stay focused in class.
C realise that walking can be beneficial and enjoyable.
D be able to walk for a mile outside the school compound.

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Dear Editor,

My child will be sitting for a major exam soon. He seems to be showing signs of stress. I have noticed a change in his appetite and he has lost weight. He is tense and moody most of the time. He is also easily irritated. When I try to reach out to him, everything I say agitates him. He used to love playing the guitar but now he has lost all interest in music. He isolates himself most of the time. I am heartbroken to see him. What can I do?
