IV. Read the text and answer the questions in FULL SENTENCES.

Last Saturday, Lan's school held a fashion-and-environment fair. In the morning, Lan and her classmates went window-shopping in the school hall where they saw clothes made from wool, cotton, and even recycled polyester. There was also a display about reducing plastic foam and protecting natural habitats.

In the afternoon, a teacher gave a talk about how our clothes can be a status symbol, but we should cut down on buying too many things. She also showed how to use a belt with a buckle and the design of traditional clothes once worn by emperors.

At night, the students joined a show where they wore hooded jackets, necklaces, and other jewellery to present modern and eco-friendly fashion. Everyone agreed it was a striking event, and Lan promised to write about it for the school magazine.
