

Eva: Revising for exams is so dull!

Tarak: My English teacher always insists on reminding us when the exams are. I don't mind doing exams. Waiting for results is so hard though! Can you imagine not having to do any exams?

Eva: Maybe it would be good but I think I might end up wasting a lot of time if I didn't have something to focus on.

Tarak: My mother began telling me about her school days yesterday! And my father is fond of telling me how fortunate we are these days.

Eva: Oh my father is always explaining to me that we are lucky because being able to find information on the internet is so much quicker than having to find books in libraries.

Tarak: Well, I guess we'd better get back to revising our maths. Only a week until the exam...

Eva: Don't remind me! I keep trying to forget!

Read the dialogue out with a partner and then decide how the conversation may continue. Write some sentences and try to include some uses of the gerund.