My Blue Locker (1)

This is my locker at school. It is special because I keep my own things inside. Every student has their own locker too. I use mine to store my books, pencils, and sometimes snacks. I like my locker because it helps me stay organized and ready for class.

My blue locker has two shelves. On the top shelf, there are two brown cups. I put some paper cups for drinks. On the bottom shelf, there is a yellow cup that holds many colorful pencils and pens. Next to it, there are three books and two novels standing neatly. The books are different colors like yellow, blue, orange, and white. I keep my locker tidy and I arrange my things in order. The locker has hooks inside too, maybe for hanging keys or bags. Everything is in the right place.

My Blue Locker (3)

This is my locker at school, and it reflects my personality and daily routine. While every student has their own locker, I consider mine unique because of how I choose to organize and personalize it. It holds not just my school supplies but also small reminders of what motivates me. It's more than just storage—it's a part of my student life.

This blue locker is mine, and I take pride in keeping it well-organized. I've divided it into two sections. On the upper shelf, I've placed two brown paper cups, which I sometimes use for coffee or tea between classes. The lower shelf holds my yellow pencil cup, filled with colorful pens, pencils, and a highlighter I often use for studying. Lined up neatly beside it are five of my textbooks. Each book is a different size and color, reflecting the range of subjects I study—science, math, and languages, for example. Inside the locker, there are small metal hooks where I sometimes hang my keys or ID lanyard. I avoid clutter because I feel more focused when everything is in its place. My locker may look simple, but it shows how much I care about staying prepared, staying tidy, and making school life easier for myself every day.
