GATOR GIRL

Everglades Holiday Park is an animal park in the USA. It's in Florida. It has birds, fish and … alligators! Many tourists visit the park every year. They come to look at the alligators. Most people think alligators are interesting, but they don't really like them, and they don't go too close to them!

Gabby Scampone is different. She lives in Florida, and she works at the park. She loves her job – and she also loves alligators. In her work, she teaches visitors about alligators. She tells visitors that alligators are not always dangerous animals. Usually, alligators don't attack people, but they don't like it when people swim in the water near them. Also, if people give food to alligators, sometimes the alligators get too close, and that can be dangerous.

Gabby doesn't always work at the park. She also has a second job: she catches wild alligators. If a wild alligator goes near a person's house, Gabby and some other people catch it. They take the alligators back to the park. Her parents and friends think she's crazy, but she really enjoys the job. Gabby thinks many people don't understand alligators very well, but that alligators are smart and amazing animals. And so far she still has all of her fingers!

Grammar PRONUNCIATION
Present Tense 3rd Person

When the base verb ends in a voiceless consonant sound (like /p/, /t/, /k/, /f/, etc.), the "-s" ending is pronounced as an /s/ sound.

Verb	Sound
Speaks	(/s/)
Drinks	(/s/)
Hate	(/s/)

Examples:
He speaks three languages.
She drinks coffee every morning.
My dog hates my cat.

When the base verb ends in a voiced consonant sound (like /b/, /d/, /g/, /v/, /z/, etc.), the "-s" ending is pronounced as a /z/ sound.

Verb	Sound
Love	(/z/)
Learn	(/z/)
Prefer	(/z/)

Examples:
She loves her dog.
Al learns by itself.
He prefers his coffee with sugar.

For verbs ending in s, x, ch, sh, or o, the "-es" ending is pronounced as an /iz/ sound. This adds an extra syllable to the word.

Verb	Sound
Pass	(/iz/)
Watch	(/iz/)
Mix	(/iz/)

Examples:
Isabel passes every exam.
She watches TV all the time.
