Many teenagers don't get enough sleep, but rest is one of the most important parts of a healthy lifestyle. During sleep, the brain organizes what you've learned, and your body grows and repairs itself. Teenagers need about 8 to 10 hours of sleep each night, but many only get 6 or 7. This can lead to tiredness, stress, and difficulty focusing in class. Over time, poor sleep can even affect your mental health and increase the risk of getting sick. One reason for this lack of sleep is screen time. Phones, tablets, and computers keep the brain active and make it harder to relax before bed. Experts recommend turning off screens at least 30 minutes before sleeping. Having a regular bedtime, even on weekends, can also help the body feel more balanced. Another issue is late-night snacking or caffeine from tea, soda, or energy drinks. These things can make it harder to fall asleep. Instead, choose relaxing activities like reading, stretching, or listening to soft music. Some teens think staying up late is cool, or they try to finish homework after midnight. But staying up too late hurts both your health and your learning. A good night's sleep helps you feel more focused, happy, and ready to face the day. Making sleep a priority is one of the easiest ways for teenagers to improve their physical and mental well-being. It costs nothing but can change everything.

Question 31. Which of the following is a main idea of the passage?

- A. Teenagers should do more homework before bed
- B. Playing games can improve sleep
- C. Getting enough sleep is key to teen health
- D. Staying up late is good for focus

Question 32. According to the passage, what may happen if teens don't get enough sleep?

- A. They will sleep better the next day
- B. They may feel tired and stressed
- C. They can remember everything
- D. They will drink more water

Question 33. What is one recommended action before bedtime?

- A. Watching a movie
- B. Playing on your phone
- C. Listening to soft music
- D. Drinking coffee

Question 34. What can late-night screen use do, according to the passage?

- A. It helps teens sleep better
- B. It makes them wake up earlier
- C. It keeps the brain active and delays sleep
- D. It improves memory overnight

Question 35. What is the CLOSEST of “priority” as used in the passage?

- A. Something that can wait
- B. Something important
- C. Something boring
- D. Something to forget

Question 36. What is the OPPOSITE meaning of “relax” as used in the passage?

- A. Worry
