The Keen Pumpkin Festival is a food festival with a difference. It (A1) ... place every year in Keene, New Hampshire, USA and it (A2) ... on a Saturday in mid to late October. During the festival, residents and visitors attempt to set the world record for gathering the largest number of lit pumpkin lanterns. When I (A3) ... in Keene last year, I was absolutely stunned by the preparations going on. A huge stand had been set up for the pumpkins in the town centre. People (A4) ... all sorts of delicious pumpkin dishes for the festival. On the day of the festival, the streets were crowded with people and there were food tasting stands and stages everywhere. I took part in a pie eating competition but I couldn't eat much. Later, there were several live concerts where everyone (A5) ... fun. The climax of the evening was the official pumpkin count. All the candles in the pumpkins (A6) ... and they looked amazing. Then, there was a big fireworks display. At the end of the festival, everyone was thrilled when we beat the record again! I (A7) ... such a great time I was really sorry to go home. I can't wait for the next year's festival!
