Topic: Different types of vacations (xs gấp đề này thấp)

A: The cost of living is increasing. We need to pay attention to our lives. We have a huge variety of water. Snow or desert holidays. We'll take you scuba-diving in the Red Sea or kayaking and white water rafting in Canada. If you prefer snow, you can try skiing or snowboarding in the Alps or even igloo-building. For those who like warmer weather, we also have sandboarding (the desert version of skateboarding) or camel safaris.

B: Take a cruise to Antarctica or the northern Arctic; explore a land of white natural beauty and wonderful wildlife. Our experts will explain everything about the two poles as you watch the penguins in Antarctica or whales and polar bears in the Arctic. There's no greater adventure than traveling to the ends of the earth. A once-in-a-lifetime experience!

C: Our cultural journeys will help you discover ancient civilizations: India, Thailand, Egypt, and many more. Visit temples, palaces, and ancient ruins- just remember to bring your camera! Get to know local ways of life by exploring markets, trying exotic foods, and meeting local people.

D: We have trekking holidays to famous places such as Machu Picchu or the Everest Base Camp Trek. As well as some nearer to home in the Highlands of Scotland. You don't need to be very sporty, just fairly fit. You'll have a great time enjoying nature with a group of new friends. Some of the holidays include camping, but we'll provide the tents for you!

Job and training

A: When I first graduated from school, I wasn't sure what to do, so I joined several volunteer programs with different companies and organizations to gain experience. I really enjoyed volunteering because it helped me decide on a career path and gave me many valuable lessons. I also believe I was able to make a difference through my work.

B: Back in school, I already knew I wanted to become a teacher, so I didn't need to try other jobs. I decided to study education at university, which is free in my country. Last summer, I did some practical training in local schools, and it was extremely helpful for my future career.

C: When I was young, I used to help my neighbor, a plumber, with simple jobs like measuring pipes, loosening screws, and handling tools. It felt very natural for me to learn that kind of work, so later I studied for two years at university to become an electrician. Now, I've learned that there are shorter courses available in this field, and I regret not choosing that option instead.

D: After graduating, I found it really difficult to get a job. I applied to many companies, but none accepted me because I lacked experience. Eventually, I found work at a gaming company that allowed me to work from home. It didn't affect my daily schedule — I worked at night while my colleagues worked during the day — and that arrangement suited me perfectly.

Music festival

A: I stayed until the very last moment of the festival and absolutely loved the grand finale. The stage lit up with dazzling lights and fireworks, creating an unforgettable atmosphere. Although getting there was a hassle due to heavy traffic and packed buses, once I arrived, all those inconveniences faded away. In the end, the final performance made every bit of the struggle worthwhile.

B: Normally, I steer clear of festivals, but I decided to give this one a try. Unfortunately, I didn't have a great time. The sound quality was poor, the event schedule seemed chaotic, and to top it off, it started raining heavily. The muddy ground made things even worse, and I spent most of the day feeling uncomfortable. Honestly, I didn't think it was worth the trouble. The only highlight for me was the beautiful park where the festival took place.

C: I really enjoyed the lively atmosphere created by the music. One of the bands on the opening night was so amazing that I couldn't help but sing along. However, everything was quite expensive. The tickets were pricey, and the food and drinks were ridiculously overcharged. I ended up spending more than I had planned. Even though the performances were great, I do hope the organizers will bring the prices down next year.

D: For me, the most memorable part of the festival was its location. The park by the river was vast and picturesque, with plenty of spots to sit and unwind between performances. I enjoyed a nice lunch there, though it was a bit pricey. Some of the shows were enjoyable, but I didn't stay for the entire event. Overall, it was the venue that left the biggest impression on me.

Mountain

1. The term "mountain" has evolved over time, reflecting not only physical characteristics but also cultural significance. In contemporary discussions, mountains may symbolize challenges to overcome or destinations for adventure, transcending their geographical attributes.
2. Climbing a mountain often leads to a profound sense of accomplishment. It represents not just reaching a physical summit but also conquering personal fears and pushing one's limits, creating memories that last a lifetime.
3. In today's digital age, sharing achievements has become prevalent. Climbing a mountain is frequently documented on social media, turning personal milestones into public spectacles that inspire others while also raising questions about authenticity.

4. The pursuit of climbing mountains can sometimes lead to misplaced priorities. While seeking adventure and recognition, individuals may neglect personal relationships or responsibilities, emphasizing the need for a balanced approach to life.

5. Engaging in extreme sports, such as mountain climbing, can forge strong bonds among participants. However, it may also create worrying connections where individuals prioritize adrenaline over safety, potentially leading to dangerous situations.

6. Shared experiences in challenging environments, like mountains, can deepen intimacy in relationships. Couples or friends who navigate the challenges of climbing together often find their bonds strengthened through mutual support and understanding.

7. While adventure is thrilling, there is a growing recognition of the importance of stability in life. Balancing the desire for adventure with the need for security is crucial, prompting individuals to reflect on their life choices and long-term goals.
