Read the text and decide whether the following statements are True, False, or Not given

1. Code-switching is merely observed among speakers of two completely distinct, unrelated languages.
2. Maori New Zealanders switch to English in the workplace mostly because their co-workers are mostly English-speaking people.
3. When discussing "sex", certain taboo words makes the discussion less comfortable and, hence, are switched.
4. At school, many people in Kazakhstan code-switch to another language when talking about family.
5. Code-switching can occur within one sentence, with the speaker being unconscious about it.
6. People often have their code-switching pointed out by others so that they can be aware of the mistakes.
7. Code-switching shows weaker language skills.
8. There was a huge leap in perception about code-switching between the 1940s and the 1980s with the former being more negative than the latter.
9. A person code-switching frequently proves that he/she masters certain language knowledge.