In 1992, a ship travelling from China to the US (A1) ... by a storm in the middle of the Pacific Ocean. Its cargo of containers was washed overboard and at least one of them split open. The container (A2) ... around 29,000 yellow plastic ducks as well as plastic frogs and turtles. The toys floated out into the water and (A3) ... across the oceans ever since. It isn't unusual for things from ships to get lost in the sea. Every year, as many as 10,000 containers fall into the ocean, spilling out everything from sports shoes to plastic bricks. These objects have already done harm to both our seas and our wildlife, and if the accidents don't stop, the situation (A4) ... worse.
