

Today I woke up at 8, but usually I wake up at 6 because I like having a calm morning. On most days I eat breakfast slowly, but this morning I didn't have time, so I just drank some juice. I usually walk to school, yet today my dad drove me because I was late.

At school I normally meet my friends before the first lesson, but yesterday I went straight to the classroom because I had a test. I usually enjoy English classes, and last week I even answered every question correctly. Sometimes I get tired during long lessons, but I always try to stay focused.

After school I often help at home. I usually take the dog for a walk, and sometimes I cook simple meals. Last weekend I didn't cook anything, though—I visited my cousin and we played video games for hours. I usually do my homework after dinner, but yesterday I did it right after school.

In the evening I like relaxing activities. I usually watch short videos online, but last night I read a book because my phone battery died. Sometimes I go to bed late, but yesterday I fell asleep very early. Calm evenings help me feel ready for the next day.
