Learning English through music and songs can be very enjoyable. You can mix pleasure with learning when you listen to a song and exploit the song as a means to your English progress. Some underlying reason can be drawn to support the idea why we use songs in language learning.

Firstly, "the song stuck in my head" phenomenon (the echoing in our minds of the last song we heard after leaving a restaurant, shopping malls, etc.) can be both enjoyable and sometimes unnerving. This phenomenon also seems to reinforce the idea that songs work on our short-and-long term memory.

Secondly, songs in general also use simple conversational language, with a lot of repetition, which is just what many learners look for sample text. The fact that they are effective makes them many times more motivating than other text. Although usually simple, some songs can be quite complex syntactically, lexically and poetically, and can be analyzed in the same way as any other literary sample.

Furthermore, listeners can choose appropriate song for their own purpose. Most pop songs and probably many other types don't have precise people, place or time reference.

In addition, songs are relaxing. They provide variety and fun and encourage harmony within oneself and within one group. Little wonder they are important tools in sustaining culture, religion, patriotism and revolution.

Finally, yet importantly, we can do many learning activities with songs such as studying grammar, practicing selective listening comprehension, translating songs, learning vocabulary, spelling, and culture.

From the elaboration above, it can be concluded that learning through music and songs, learning English can be enjoyable and fun.

The following text is for questions number 12 to 16.

Social Media and Personal Security

Everyone must be wiser when they post on social media to prevent identity theft. Firstly, most people don't know how to stay safe online. They either forget or don't know about social engineering and identity theft. Most cybercriminals target unassuming victims who innocently believe that data security is only about a password. The victims will continue to post on social media and engage with scammers and other cybercriminals. There is a critical need for public education on cyber security, especially in the social media realm.

Secondly, the case of catfishing is a prime example of identity theft. And most victims do not realize they are talking with a fake person. They use a real person's photograph and identity details to scam others. Catfishing is a criminal act. And it's possible when people are not careful with their data.

Finally, everyone needs to understand that data is the new currency. A hacker can obtain data by only sharing the same Wi-Fi network. The huge demand for data worldwide means more cases of identity theft. While catfishing may sound like a harmless version of identity theft, there is a larger crime ring that uses stolen identities for bank loans and credit card bills. Millions of people may lose their money instantly.

While we can't control everyone, we can set personal limitations on what to share on social media. Knowing the distinction between what is personal and what can be in the public domain is crucial to keeping things private.

Another security measure is to limit social media interaction to only friends and family. We can also take the necessary security measures by being cautious when online and having a strong password that is regularly changed.

12. What is the reason for the need for public education on cyber security?

- a. Most people know how to stay safe online.
- b. Cybercriminals only target people with strong passwords.
- c. Data security is only about social media posts.
- d. Many people are unaware of social engineering and identity theft.
- e. Catfishing is not a serious crime.

13. According to the text, what is catfishing primarily about?

- a. Using someone else's identity to scam others
- b. Creating fake social media profiles for fun
- c. Posting personal information on social media
- d. Educating people about cyber security
- e. Sharing Wi-Fi networks with others

14. Why does the text emphasize the importance of understanding data as the new currency?

- a. To avoid cyberbullying
- b. Because catfishing is a harmless activity.
- c. To prevent identity theft and financial losses
- d. To increase demand for social media interaction
- e. Because strong passwords are not necessary.

15. According to the text, why might millions of people lose their money instantly due to identity theft?

- a. Because they don't know how to change passwords.
- b. Because they overshare personal information on the internet.
- c. Because they don't limit their interaction on the internet.
- d. Because they ignore their data security.
- e. Because stolen identities can be used for financial fraud.

16. What security measure does the text suggest to protect personal information on social media?

- a. Sharing everything openly to increase online presence
- b. Limiting social media interaction to only friends and family
- c. Using weak passwords that are easy to remember
- d. Ignoring public education on cyber security
- e. Forgetting about social engineering and identity theft

The following text is for questions number 17 to 20.

Studying in a foreign country is becoming more and more popular. The experience is valued by students and potential employers. However, there are positive and negative points to be taken into account.

On the positive side, studying abroad has many advantages. By studying abroad, a student will acquire advanced language skills. This can, of course, enrich his or her knowledge, which can be a valuable asset for the student's future. The student will also experience a different educational system that is instructive and insightful. And the interesting thing about studying abroad is that the student can make friends from all over the world.

Besides making new friends, the student also has the opportunity to travel around the country.

On the negative side, the travel and living costs of studying abroad may be higher than if the student studied in his or her own country. And if the student's command of the foreign language is not good enough, he or she will learn only a little, and their academic performance in that language may be limited. He or she may also find the type of teaching unproductive, with less teacher-student contact and larger classes than in the student's home country. Moreover, having many friends from different cultures can be troublesome because sometimes the student has difficulty adapting to a different social environment.

Therefore, to study abroad, a student should be mentally prepared and get as much information about the destination country as possible, so that he or she will be able to take advantage of the opportunity.

17. Having many friends from different cultures can be troublesome for a student who studies abroad because

- a. the cultures are different
- b. he/she lives far from his/her family
- c. sometimes they don't care about cultures
- d. living in another country needs hard efforts
- e. sometimes he/she has difficulty adapting to a different social environment

18. Which of the following statements is not true according to the text?

- a. Studying abroad can advance language skill.
- b. Studying abroad can enrich the student's knowledge.
- c. Students must have enough information about the destination country.
- d. Students can make many friends from all over the world by studying abroad.
- e. Living cost of studying abroad is less than studying in the student's home country.

19. "..., a student will acquire advanced language skill." (paragraph 2)

What is the synonym of the word 'acquire'?

- a. Need
- b. Get
- c. Show
- d. Make
- e. Describe

20. Why does the text recommend that students should be mentally prepared before studying abroad?

- a. To limit their academic performance in a foreign language
- b. To increase travel and living costs
- c. To make the experience less valuable for potential employers
- d. To take advantage of the opportunity effectively
- e. To reduce their exposure to different educational systems

The following text is for questions number 26 to 30.

Old Enough?

When is a person old enough to be responsible for a crime? This question needs to be investigated because the current law is not good enough.

The law at present protects children aged between ten years and fourteen years from being punished for committing crimes. It is believed that children under fourteen years are too young to realize the seriousness of their crimes. Mr. Stephen Scarlett, head of the NSW Children's Court, describes how clever young offenders use this defense, saying that they are too young to understand that they have broken the law. Mr. Scarlett, an expert on this subject, states that the age should be dropped from fourteen to twelve years. I agree with this.

Teenagers these days are far more sophisticated than those in the past. The law should recognize this. In a recent survey some people suggested that the age for being responsible for a crime should be dropped to eight years old.

This, I feel, is too young. Fourteen, however, is too old. Is there anyone who believes that a fourteen-year-old does not know that it is against the law to steal or vandalize property? By the age of twelve, children are aware of what is legal and what is not.

Public pressure creates change. It is now up to the public to put pressure on the government to change the age at which a person may be held responsible for a crime from fourteen years to twelve years. Out of date laws have no place in a modern society, especially one that needs people to be responsible for their actions.

26. What does the text tell about?

- a. When a person is old enough to be responsible for a crime
- b. When a person is being punished for committing crimes
- c. When children are too young to be responsible for a crime
- d. When a person is too old to be responsible for a crime
- e. When do teenagers realize the seriousness of their crimes

27. The part of the text which states what ought or ought not to happen is called

- a. thesis
- b. argument
- c. elaboration
- d. reiteration
- e. recommendation

28. In what age are the children protected by the present law from being punished for committing crimes?

- a. Ten years old
- b. Fourteen years old
- c. Ten to fourteen years old
- d. Eight years old
- e. Twelve years old

29. Where can we find the recommendation of the text?

- a. In the title
- b. In the first paragraph
- c. In the second paragraph
- d. In the third paragraph
- e. In the fourth paragraph

30. "Teenagers these days are far more sophisticated than those in the past."

The word "those" refers to

- a. days
- b. teenagers
- c. laws

The Importance of Fasting Nowadays

In today's fast-moving and modern world, fasting is more important than ever. It is not only a religious or cultural act, but also a way to improve our health and discipline.

Firstly, fasting gives our body a break. We often eat too much unhealthy food—fast food, snacks, and sugary drinks. When we fast, our body can rest and clean itself. Doctors say fasting can help reduce the risk of diseases like diabetes and heart problems.

Secondly, fasting helps us control ourselves. In the digital age, we are used to instant things—fast food, fast internet, fast replies. Fasting teaches us patience and self-control. We learn to say "no" to our desires, and that makes our minds stronger.

Thirdly, fasting makes us care about others. When we feel hunger, we understand how poor people feel every day. This can make us more grateful and kind. In times when the world is full of selfishness, fasting reminds us to share and care.

Therefore, fasting should be practiced and appreciated more. Whether for religious, health, or personal reasons, fasting is a powerful way to become healthier, more disciplined, and more compassionate. Let's not just fast with our stomachs, but also with our hearts and minds.

36. What are the arguments of the text?

- a. Fasting boosts muscle growth immediately.
- b. Fasting makes the body take break from constant eating.
- c. Fasting prevents people from eating vegetables.
- d. Fasting improves our empathy towards others.
- e. Fasting makes people sleep longer.

37. How does fasting help develop self-control in the modern age?

- a. By teaching us to wait and manage our desires
- b. By making internet use faster
- c. By helping us become more patient
- d. By allowing us to eat more snacks afterward
- e. By removing the need to use technology

38. What emotional or moral lessons can we learn from fasting?

- a. It makes us more aware of how the poor feel.
- b. It encourages selfish behavior.
- c. It teaches us to share and care for others.
- d. It helps us become rich faster.
- e. It supports competition instead of kindness.

39. Why is fasting still important in today's modern world?

- a. It helps us stay trendy.
- b. It is just a tradition and nothing more.
- c. It offers benefits for health and personal growth.
- d. It reminds us to be more disciplined and grateful.
- e. It's only important during certain holidays.

40. What is the writer's main message about fasting?

- a. Fasting should be avoided because it makes us tired.
- b. We should do fasting just to lose weight.
- c. Fasting can improve both our body and character.
- d. It should be appreciated for more than just religious reasons.
- e. Fasting is only meaningful when done alone.

How to Manage Your Debt Wisely

Managing debt takes discipline and planning, but it is possible. By following these steps and staying consistent, you can become debt-free and feel more secure about your future.

Materials Needed:

- A notebook or budgeting app
- Monthly income and expense records
- List of all your debts
- Calculator

Steps:

1. List All Your Debts

Write down all the debts you owe. Include the amount, the lender, due dates, and interest rates. This will help you understand your financial situation.

Steps:

1. List All Your Debts
Write down all the debts you owe. Include the amount, the lender, due dates, and interest rates. This will help you understand your financial situation.
2. Create a Monthly Budget
Make a clear plan of your monthly income and expenses. Subtract your expenses from your income to see how much money you can use to pay your debts.
3. Prioritize Your Payments
Focus on paying high-interest debts first. If possible, pay more than the minimum amount to reduce your debt faster.
4. Avoid Taking New Debts
Try not to borrow more money while you're still paying old debts. Control your spending and stick to your budget.
5. Talk to Your Creditors
If you're having trouble paying on time, contact your creditors. They may offer new payment plans or lower interest rates.
6. Track Your Progress
Write down each payment you make and watch your debt decrease. This will motivate you to keep going.
7. Build Emergency Savings
Start saving a small amount each month. This helps you avoid new debts in case of unexpected expenses.
