Lattu — Spinning a top or Lattu was once the most popular street game of India. The game involves spinning a 'lattu' (top): a solid 'turnip shaped' wooden toy with a grooved lower half with two nails dug at the top and the bottom. A cotton string is wrapped around the lower half of the 'lattu' to make it spin.

Kite Flying — Kite flying is one of the most popular and romantic games of India as well of Asia. Kite is known as 'patang' in India and the thread used is called 'Manjha', a glass coated line. Each flier attempts to cut every other kite out of the sky.

Chupa Chuppi — This game is also known as hide-n-seek. This, however, needed all the participants to be caught. The moment one guy is caught, he joins and tries to catch the other hidden participants. Each caught participant joins and the chain gets longer.
