2 Hill Stations of India

Choose the correct options to name these hill stations.

1. This is an artificial hill station near Pune in Maharashtra, often referred to as India's first hill station since Independence.

   a. Khandala ○ b. Mahabaleshwar ○ c. Lavasa ○

2. This hill station is in northern West Bengal. On a clear day, you can see a magnificient view of Kanchenjunga and Mount Everest from certain points in the city.

   a. Kalimpong ○ b. Darjeeling ○ c. Amarkantak ○

3. This hill station shares its name with the name of the highest peak in the Aravalli Range, Rajasthan. It is home to the famous Dilwara Temples, known for its intricate carvings on marbles.

   a. Mount Abu ○ b. Kasauni ○ c. Lonavala ○

4. This hill station in Meghalaya was once called the 'Wettest place on Earth'.

   a. Shillong ○ b. Cherrapunji ○ c. Aizawl ○

5. This hill station located in the Western Ghats of kerala is known for its tea plantations.

   a. Munnar ○ b. Amboli ○ c. Hosanagara ○

6. This is a village in the Shimoga district of Karnataka. It receives very heavy rainfall that has earned it the name, 'The Cherrapunji of South'.

   a. Kalpetta ○ b. Agumbe ○ c. Udhagamandalam ○

7. The name of this hill station in Jammu and Kashmir, located at an elevation of 2600 m, means 'Meadow of Flowers'. It displays a panoramic view of the whole valley of Kashmir and also of Nanga Parbat.

   a. Gulmarg ○ b. Leh ○ c. Srinagar ○

8. This hill station near Shimla has a cricket ground and a polo ground at an altitude of 2444 m. It is believed to be the highest cricket ground in the world.

   a. Dalhousie ○ b. Chail ○ c. Mt. Abu ○

LIVEWORKSHEETS