

55

Migratory Birds

Movement of a bird from one region to another in a particular season is called migration. Birds migrate in order to breed or to find new feeding grounds. Birds are the best equipped for extensive travel because of their wings. The geography of the Earth seems to provide them impetus for their migratory route.

Look the following pictures of some migratory birds and name them. Take help from the Help line.

HELP LINE

Golden Plover
Arctic Tern
Warbler
Scarlet Tanager
Canada Goose
White Stork
Fly-Catcher
Sandpiper