I live in Apache Junction, Arizona. At first, my neighborhood may look boring to you. The streets are wide and clean. The houses are all the same. They're nice houses, but they're small and ordinary.

What is special about my neighborhood? If you go a few blocks north, you are in the desert. What a change! No more houses. No more streets. Just sand and rocks and hills. Tall cactus plants shoot up toward the sky. The desert smells wonderful—like sweet perfume. In the distance are the beautiful Superstition Mountains.

I like my neighborhood because I can go hiking or mountain biking right near my house. Go a few more miles up the road, and you reach Saguaro Lake. West of there, you find wild horses. No one owns these horses. They run free in the beautiful desert.
