Using Public Bicycles Should Be Promoted

(3) Air pollution and traffic congestion are serious problems in urban areas. Promoting the use of public bicycles can help reduce both.

(2) Bicycles are environmentally friendly. They do not produce emissions and help reduce dependence on fossil fuels. By riding bikes instead of cars, we can lower the carbon footprint and improve air quality.

(4) In addition, cycling improves public health. It is a form of physical exercise that helps prevent lifestyle diseases such as obesity, hypertension, and heart problems.

(5) Public bike-sharing programs are affordable and accessible. They offer a practical transportation option for short distances and reduce the burden on public transport systems.

(1) Local governments should invest in more bike lanes and bike-sharing facilities. Citizens should be encouraged to use bicycles regularly for short commutes.

Mobile Phones Should Not Be Allowed in Class

(3) Nowadays, almost every student has a mobile phone. While mobile phones are useful for communication and information access, they should not be allowed in the classroom during lessons.

(1) Mobile phones often distract students from the learning process. Instead of listening to the teacher, students might text, play games, or scroll through social media. This not only affects their understanding but also disrupts the concentration of others.

(2) In addition, mobile phones make cheating easier. Students can secretly look up answers during tests or share answers with friends. This makes the assessment unfair and unreliable.

(4) Also, excessive phone use can reduce face-to-face interaction. Students become less social and depend more on virtual communication, which affects their emotional development.

(5) To create a focused and disciplined learning environment, schools should ban the use of mobile phones in classrooms. If needed, schools can provide specific times and areas for students to use their phones responsibly.

Students Should Wear Uniforms

Thesis

Some people argue that students should have freedom to wear any clothes they like to school. However, I believe wearing school uniforms has more benefits.

Arguments

Uniforms help eliminate social differences among students. When everyone wears the same outfit, it reduces the chance of discrimination or bullying based on clothing brands or fashion trends. Uniforms also promote discipline and help students focus on their studies rather than their appearance.

Furthermore, wearing uniforms makes it easier for school staff to identify students, increasing school security. Parents can also save money because they don't need to buy expensive clothes for their children to wear every day.

Recommendation

Therefore, all students should wear school uniforms. It helps promote equality, safety, and focus in the school environment.
