

1 Weaponry: Pistol

Beretta
M9 pistol

A pistol is a sidearm. Soldiers can aim and fire it with one hand. Pistols are smaller than other firearms, making them useful in close combat.

Modern pistols, such as the Beretta M9, are semi-automatic. This means that they do not need to be charged between rounds.

Officers most often carry handguns. In fact, service pistols have great symbolic meaning. When a unit is defeated, the commanding officer often gives his sidearm to the enemy commander. This shows that the unit surrenders.

1 What does the passage say about aiming the pistol?

- ☐ A Its size makes it difficult to aim. ☐ B It can be aimed with one hand. ☐ C Semi-automatic pistols are easy to aim. ☐ D It is hard to aim in close combat.

Weaponry: Rifle 2

The rifle is a common military firearm. Soldiers fire it from the shoulder. It has a built-in sight. The barrel has twisting grooves on the inside. These spin the bullet, improving the weapon's accuracy and range. In fact, this weapon was named after the technique used to make the barrel: "rifling."

At one time, rifles could fire only one round at a time.

However, modern semi-automatic assault rifles (also called "assault weapons") like the M16A2 can fire multiple-round bursts with a single pull of the trigger.

- 1 The rifle has a sight that is built in.
- 2 The rifle is named after the technique used to make the trigger.
- 3 Spinning the bullet improves the weapon's rate of fire.
- 4 Today, rifles can fire multiple bullets with one trigger pull.
