At Malven House I had the opportunity to experience a perfect three-week study trip in England.

I loved it! The school offers various ways to learn English, including extra activities like visits to museums, city tours, etc.

The school is located in the center of Brighton, and it was near my hotel, so I could walk to class every day.

What I loved the best of this trip is that I met lots of people from different countries and cultures.

Castle School is great place to study. The classes were great and sometimes they organized theme nights, or open-door parties. I was never bored!

My favorite part was the student residence where I stayed, my room-mates were awesome and I'm still in touch with them.

I went to Brighton for a couple of weeks to study English at St. Giles School and in general it was a very good experience.

The teachers were quite involved and interesting and lessons were varied, for example, in the afternoon they included a debate club, with a lot of topics to talk about, like religion or politics.

I made friends and we spent some time together, but I didn't participate part in many of the group activities because I stayed with my English friend Sarah.

I enjoyed staying with Sarah, I really like her. It was the best part of the trip.

Although Regent Brighton is situated on a busy street, the noise didn't interfere with the good learning atmosphere. The teachers were very motivated and motivating. I also loved the school's online platform for self-study, it was very easy to use.

The host family, where I lived during my twenty-day stay, was nice and we had a lot of fun together. But what I really loved was my day trip to London with them, it was amazing!
