William's skiing lesson

On the first day of his school skiing holiday, William went with his friends for their first lesson. They spent all morning going up and down a small, easy hill. William fell over lots of times.

After lunch their teacher took them to the top of the mountain. They all started to ski down the mountain behind the teacher. William was last. It was fun, but then he fell over. It was very difficult to stand up again. When he stood up he could see a group of children a little way in front of him. He followed them. When they stopped at a café, William couldn't see any of his friends in the group. 'Oh no,' he thought. 'It's the wrong class.' He decided to ask the waiter in the café to help him.

'I'm lost,' he explained. 'I need to get back to the ski school.' 'Oh dear,' said the man. 'You're going the wrong way. Wait here.' William waited and then he saw four big dogs and a sledge. 'Get in the sledge,' said the man. 'I'll take you back.'

They went very fast down to the bottom of the mountain. 'This is much better than skiing,' thought William. Suddenly, he saw his friends. They all looked very surprised when he waved at them. And William was the first person to arrive back at the ski school.
