

I've been searching
For inside the noise
But silence screams louder
When it lives in your
I let the chaos settle in
Built a templemy skin
A thousand thoughts, none of them mine
I drown in stillness time
Can't fake a when I'm alone
Can't feel the light when I've turned to stone
But I'mof fighting shadows in my head
I'm tired of waking up and feeling half-dead
If peace exists beyond this cage

Then let me burn andthe page
Is this what they call inner peace?
A war inside that leaves
I'm bleeding out, but still I breathe
Maybe pain is how I'm freed
Is this what they call release?
No heaven, no hell, just grief
But if I break, at least I'll be Something closer to inner peace
I lit a, but I froze
In comfort's grip, I came too close
To losing who I swore I'd be
A with eyes that cannot see
So I scrape my soul against the floor
Just to feel more
All these beg for silence
But I was raised on inner violence
If healing means I bleed again

Thenevery wound, my friend
Let it, let it burn
There's no calm without the storm
If I'm, then let me be
If I, don't rescue me
I used to think that peace was still
A mirror lake, a silent hill
But now I it's rising smoke
It's crying hard and never spoke
Is this what they call inner peace?
When all is, and I'm released
I'm not afraid of losing me
'Cause what remains is finally free
This is what I call release
No more chains, no more deceit
I cracked, I, I ceased to be
And now I live in inner peace
