How to Be a Crafty Customer

Do you sometimes feel you spend too much money when you go shopping? Being a crafty customer means (18) _____. It helps you save money, get good deals, and avoid wasting your cash on things you don't really need. Here are some tips to help you shop wisely.

1. Make a shopping list

Before you go shopping, write down exactly what you need. If you have a list, (19) _____. This is especially important when shopping for food, because supermarkets often tempt you with snacks and sweets.

2. Set a budget

Decide how much money you can spend before you go to the shop. If you set a limit, you'll think twice before buying something expensive. (20) _____ before the end of the month.

3. Compare prices

Don't buy the first item you see. Look at prices in different shops or online. Sometimes, the same product can be much cheaper elsewhere. Being patient and comparing prices can save you a lot of money.

4. Wait before buying

If you see something you really want but don't need right away, wait a few days before buying it. (21) _____, and you realise you don't actually need it.

5. Take advantage of discounts

Look for sales, coupons, or student discounts. These can make products much cheaper. But remember—buy something only if you really need it, not just (5) _____.

6. Avoid emotional shopping

Sometimes we shop when we are bored, sad, or stressed. This can make us buy unnecessary things. If you feel this way, try going for a walk, meeting a friend, or doing a hobby instead. Being a crafty customer is about thinking before you spend. If you plan ahead and shop carefully, you'll save money and still get what you need.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 23 to 30.

Traditional Markets Struggle as Supermarkets Expand

Traditional markets in Ho Chi Minh City and across Vietnam are facing serious challenges as supermarkets grow more popular. Many local shoppers now prefer supermarkets because they are clean, well-organized, and offer clear prices. People also like the convenience of shopping there – supermarkets are often open late, and customers can easily compare products and take home fresh produce at any time.

As a result, many traditional markets have lost customers. After the pandemic, foot traffic dropped by 20–50% compared to 2019 levels. A market trader at Tân Định Market said sales have slowed down, and many stalls operate for only half a day. In some markets, the number of vendors has fallen by 30–40%, and key locations have become noticeably quieter.

Traditional markets also struggle with limited investment. Many lack modern facilities, such as good sanitation, proper lighting, or safe structures – making them less attractive to young shoppers. Supermarkets, on the other hand, provide comfort and ease, often drawing buyers away.

To survive, some market vendors are trying to adapt. Local authorities are supporting projects to modernize markets by improving their infrastructure and offering digital training to vendors. Some stalls now sell both in person and online, blending traditional and modern retail styles.

In short, although traditional markets remain culturally significant, they must adapt quickly to compete with modern supermarkets and changing shopping habits.

Question 23. Which of the following is NOT mentioned

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the best answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 40.

Destiny Snow is a remarkable young entrepreneur from Atlanta. At just 15 years old, she launched her own online beauty business called SnowGlam Collection. She started with only $600, and spent it on product labels, packaging, and a website to sell her beauty products. In November 2019, she opened her store and began her journey as a business owner.

[I] In the beginning, Destiny's sales were slow – just 10 to 20 orders a month. [II] After pausing her business, Destiny spent time learning marketing strategies and understanding customers. [III] She read books, watched videos, and changed her marketing plan. [IV]

Using her new strategy, Destiny started working with social media influencers. One day in 2021, influencer Ari Fletcher tagged Destiny's products on Instagram. Almost instantly, her phone began receiving order notifications. By the end of that day, she had made over $65,000 in sales and had gained more than 3,000 followers.

Thanks to this successful promotion, her business grew quickly. Destiny reached over $1 million in sales in two years. She credits her mother as her role model and inspiration. Growing up, she watched her mother run businesses and learned from her example.

Destiny didn't let school or the COVID-19 pandemic stop her. In fact, being home during the pandemic allowed her to focus on her business while she was homeschooled.

Today, SnowGlam Collection sells a variety of beauty products – including hair tools, cosmetics, and eBooks that help other young people learn about business. Destiny shows that with creativity, hard work, and smart marketing, even a teenager can build a successful business. Maybe you, too, can follow in her footsteps one day!
