Exercise 3: Read the text carefully and decide which type of tours each feature below

Adventure tours are great for people who like new experiences. They're ideal for young, active people who want to do something different on their holidays. One of the main advantages is that you can see amazing places that are difficult to get to in other ways. For example, if you go on a trekking tour in Nepal, you can visit remote villages that are only accessible by foot. If you travel with a small group of people and a guide, you can also learn a lot about the local culture. However, these tours aren't suitable for everyone. Some people might find it too tiring and stressful.

In contrast, leisure tourism is perfect for people who just want to rest and relax on their holidays. You can spend your days lying on the beach, swimming in the sea, or reading a book by the pool. It's also a good option if you have young children because there are often activities for kids. Leisure tourism is also a great way to learn about different cultures and explore new places. However, it can be expensive as people want to choose luxury accommodation for relaxation.

Features	Adventure	Leisure	Both types
1. Lying on the beach may be the main activity to recharge energy.
2. It is a good option for families with young kids.
3. It is suitable for active people who seek new experiences.
4. Tourists can learn about the local cultures.
5. This type may demand good physical health.
6. Some people might find this type of travel tiring.
