Do you find learning after graduation difficult? If the answer is yes, you're not alone. Below are some of the most common difficulties people might have when trying to pursue lifelong learning. Lifelong learning can be time-consuming. Besides the time for classes, you'll have to complete assignments and take tests. Also, you may lose out on time for family and friends. While it isn't easy to deal with this problem, one possible solution is to find online classes that allow you to learn at your own pace.

Another challenge is the cost of learning. Taking courses and buying materials can be pretty expensive. However, there are great free online resources that you can use as a start. You can also consider asking for financial help from your employer if you're looking to take more expensive courses for your job. You might also lose your motivation. Learning can sometimes be difficult or tedious. However, if you choose courses that you're truly interested in or that can lead to a job promotion, you may find it easier to pursue learning. You could also find support from a study partner. Having someone to share your progress with can make learning more fun.

In addition, you might not have access to learning resources. Thankfully, there are websites that have courses on lots of different topics. If you still can't find what you want, many experts now offer their own online courses. You can find out about these by following people on social media.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions from 13 to 17.

Kim: I think face-to-face learning is better than online learning because I can communicate with teachers and other classmates immediately and directly when I have questions. In class, I can work in groups and discuss with friends. This helps me understand the lessons better. When I have a problem, I can ask for answers or help immediately. I can't do this in online classes. I have to email my teachers and wait for their reply. Learning in a traditional classroom also has fewer distractions than learning online. My teachers have many strategies to keep us focused on the lessons. I really enjoy my lessons and learn a lot.

Laura: I think online learning has more advantages than disadvantages. My school is trying to change from face-to-face to blended learning, so sometimes we have online classes. I don't have to go to school, but I don't feel I'm missing any lessons by taking online classes. Furthermore, I think I learn online as much as I learn in a traditional class. I can't talk to my teacher and classmates, but I can email them at any time. I also have an online discussion board where I can exchange comments and ideas about my projects with my classmates. The only disadvantage is I really need to have a fast Internet connection.
