RELATIVE CLAUSES

In English we can find two types of relative clauses depending on the information we are giving. These can also be combined with tenses.

Relative clauses that give necessary information (no commas):

The artist who won the award gave an emotional speech.
The movie that broke records was released last month.

Relative clauses that give extra information (use commas):

Taylor Swift, *who is known for her songwriting, announced a world tour.
The Grammys, *which take place every year, celebrate the best in music.

Read this brief news about a celebrity. Decide if the relative clauses provide extra or important information.

Bad Bunny, who is one of the most streamed artists in the world, won Album of the Year at the 2026 Grammys with Debí Tirar Más Fotos. The album, which is mostly in Spanish, made history because it became the first Spanish-language album to win this category.
The project celebrates Puerto Rican culture, that influences many of Bad Bunny's songs, and mixes different Latin music styles. The album includes themes about identity and migration, which are topics that are often discussed in Latin American music.
Some fans see the win as a cultural victory for Latin artists, while others see it as a moment that reflects political and social debates about representation, language, and global music trends.

Now, read some opinions from the public. Decide if they provide important or extra information in their relative clauses.

This is such and amazing album that talks about Latin identity and culture deserved this win! 🔥🎶 #GoPuertoRico!

Artists who sing in Spanish are showing that music has no language limits! #Grammy2026 #AOTY

A major snub towards @ladygaga Her album should win. Music fans prefer music that sound more traditional pop. 😤 🚫 #Unfair

Latin music, which has influenced global pop for years, is finally getting more recognition! Well Done Conejo Malo! 🎶 #DTMF #AOTY

Bad Bunny divides audiences more than other global artists. It is clear that this win will create more cultural division online. #Grammy2026

They have just awarded an """ARTIST""" who openly criticize the U.S. 😂😂😂😂😂 #Shame #GrammysGoneCrazy
