

The Movie We Had Waited Months to See

Last weekend, my friends and I finally went to see the new Ecuadorian adventure movie Lost in the Andes. We had watched the trailer months earlier, and we had talked about it ever since. By the time we arrived at the cinema, a long line had already formed. Many people had bought their tickets online, but we hadn't reserved ours, so we worried about getting seats. Luckily, we found four seats near the back. The lights went off, and the film began with an exciting scene. The director had filmed the mountains beautifully, and the soundtrack created a lot of suspense. Halfway through the movie, there was a surprising plot twist. The main character discovered that his friend had lied to him. Everyone in the audience gasped. Although the movie lasted two hours, it felt short because the story moved quickly. By the end, we had forgotten about our phones and had become completely involved in the story. When the credits rolled, people stood up and clapped. We left the cinema feeling happy because the movie had exceeded our expectations. It was definitely worth the wait.

Choose the correct answer.

1. Why were the friends especially excited to see the movie?

- A. It had won several international awards
- B. They had followed it and discussed it for months
- C. It was the only movie playing that weekend
- D. Their families had recommended it

2. What problem did they face when they arrived at the cinema?

- A. The movie had already started
- B. The tickets were too expensive
- C. There were no seats together
- D. Many tickets had already been sold

3. What does “By the time we arrived at the cinema, a long line had already formed” indicate?

- A. The line formed after they arrived
- B. They were the first people there
- C. The crowd gathered before they got there
- D. The line disappeared quickly

4. Why were they worried about getting seats?

- A. They had lost their tickets

- B. The cinema was closing early
- C. They had not bought tickets in advance
- D. They arrived late on purpose

5. Which factor most contributed to the suspenseful atmosphere at the beginning?

- A. The audience's reactions
- B. The director's use of mountains and music
- C. The length of the movie
- D. The comedy scenes

6. What was the effect of the plot twist on the audience?

- A. They became confused and bored
- B. They started talking loudly
- C. They reacted with surprise
- D. They decided to leave

7. What can we infer from “we had forgotten about our phones”?

- A. Their phones had no battery
- B. The cinema prohibited phones
- C. They were completely focused on the movie
- D. They left their phones at home

8. What does the phrase “the movie had exceeded our expectations” suggest?

- A. The movie was exactly what they expected
- B. The movie was disappointing
- C. The movie was better than they thought it would be
- D. The movie was too long