NOT THE NICEST IDIOMS

"Did you finish the client report?" Laura 1) _____ as she opened her laptop.

"I 2) _____ , if Tom hadn't interrupted me every ten seconds," Ben 3) _____ .

"I was just trying 4) _____ help," Tom 5) _____ .

"No, you were being a 6) _____ ," Ben said. "It's my presentation, and your 7) _____ was completely 8) _____ ."

Tom 9) _____ . "Well, 10) _____ has to fix things. Half this team 11) _____ what they're doing."

Laura 12) _____ an eyebrow. "Oh, 13) _____ you do? You're such a 14) _____ , do you know that?"

Tom 15) _____ his arms. Just then, the team gathered to celebrate 16) _____ a new client.

"Why are we celebrating?" Tom 17) _____ . "We 18) _____ have three deadlines and a broken website."

Ben 19) _____ . "Wow, don't be such a 20) _____ . We finally have good news."

"And about that website," Laura 21) _____ , "it's not broken. It just has 22) _____ ."

Ben packed his bag and smiled. "You know, Tom, between you 23) _____ everyone, complaining 24) _____ every win, and slowing us 25) _____ , you're becoming a real 26) _____ ."

LIVEWORKSHEETS