Leo's Fire Safety Training

Leo works as a safety instructor in a small town. His job is to teach people how to react calmly in dangerous situations. During training sessions, he explains that fires often begin with a small blaze but can spread quickly if people panic.

One important lesson is learning when to get down on your hands and knees to avoid smoke. Leo also teaches people to move carefully and help others with grace, especially children and the elderly. At night, the orange glow of a fire can make it hard to see clearly.

Leo believes that helping others is a noble responsibility. Even after difficult drills, he encourages everyone to carry on practising so they are better prepared in real emergencies. After the training, the floor is often covered in chalk marks, leaving it looking like a dark slate.
