An Unusual Job: The Professional Bed Warmer

Do you like sleeping? Some people have a very strange job. They are professional bed warmers.

What do they do?

In some big hotels in London, staff members wear special yellow suits. They jump into the hotel bed before the guest arrives. They stay there for about 5 to 10 minutes.

Why do they do it?

The goal is to make the bed warm and comfortable. Most people don't like cold sheets in winter. The bed warmer uses their body heat to start the "warming process." It is like a human electric blanket!

Is it a real job?

Yes! It started as a funny experiment, but some luxury hotels still use it. Of course, the bed warmers must be very clean and wear their special suits.
