

FRIENDSHIP AND THEORY OF MIND

Watch the video again and listen for the missing phrases in the following extracts from the transcript. Write them into the gaps. Check your answers with a partner first. Together, try to complete any that you missed.

- a. Before we _____<sup>1</sup> the science, let's first observe one in action.
- b. If I could somehow design a best friend, you know, put together all the ideal qualities of my perfect match, that person would _____<sup>2</sup> Priya.
- c. And she's _____<sup>3</sup>. Like last year after I got dumped by Te— you know what? I don't even want to mention their name. It felt like _____<sup>4</sup>.
- d. But as soon as I told Priya, boom, she was at my door. I was a wreck, but she sat there with me and listened. We're always _____<sup>5</sup>; it's as if we can _____<sup>6</sup>!
And we can talk for hours— about anything. I know my mom would say she has the phone bills to prove it.
- e. Teenage friends can seem _____<sup>7</sup>.
- f. You and your best friend may not be only on the same page, but also scientifically, _____<sup>8</sup>.
