Instructions: Read the information and answer the questions belowSource 1

Migration is when people move from one country to live in another. There are many different reasons for migration.

People often migrate to find employment, in order to send money home to support their family. This improves their standard of living. War and conflict create refugees as people leave the country to escape from danger of injury and death. Natural disasters like droughts cause famine, water shortages and disease, so people move to survive. Some people move to seek a better education for their children. People also migrate to escape poverty.

Answer the following multiple-choice questions

Source 3: We should help refugees, not be afraid of them.

Many refugees are running away from war. They have lost their homes, jobs, schools, and sometimes their families. They face danger, sickness, and even death. Some travel in overcrowded boats, and many risk their lives just to find safety. They are very desperate and just want hope for a better life.

We are all human beings, so we should understand and help them. It is not right to ignore their suffering.

Everyone has human rights. If you were in their situation, you would also want help.

The United Nations says countries have a responsibility to support refugees.

Even if people worry about culture or large numbers of migrants, helping refugees can also benefit the country. Studies show that migrants can help the economy grow stronger.

Question 11 – Subjective question

“We must help the refugees.” Why must refugees be helped? Why do you think they need help?

Question 12

What is the responsibility of countries that the United Nations mentioned in Source 3 line 8?

Source 7 Holiday helpers – Travel agents

Being a Travel Agent

Some people book their holidays online or by calling hotels. But some people still like to go to a travel agency. They enjoy looking at holiday pictures in brochures and talking about their trip ideas. A travel agent helps people plan, choose, and book their holidays. They listen carefully and find a holiday that matches what the customer wants and can afford. They give advice about where to go, things to see, events, and local customs. They might also give information about vaccines, travel insurance, or guided tours.

To be a good travel agent, you need to like working with people and helping them. You must be able to speak clearly and listen well. Travel agents also need to be good at convincing people to buy holidays and be good at math. They must have good computer skills to search for and book trips.

Question 22. Explain why some people still use travel agents.

Research

Your task is to make research about the Topic:
Is fast fashion harmful to the environment?

What is Fast fashion:

Fast fashion refers to cheap and trendy clothes that are produced quickly by large companies such as Shein, Zara, and H&M to mention a few. These clothes are often worn only a few times before being thrown away.

Your research should include the following:

- Information on how is fast fashion clothes produced?
- How does producing large quantities of clothes affect: Water use, causes Pollution, affect Climate change and increase waste in landfills
- Analyse who benefits from Fast fashion and who is affected by Fast fashion
- Evaluate by concluding whether or not Fast fashion should be banned. Support your evaluation with at least two reasonable reasons.
- Remember to write a solution to the problems caused by Fast fashion
- You can use your Global Perspectives Students Book 6, pages 10 – 16 as a supplementary source
