A fiery mountain is a volcano. Inside the earth on which we live there are gases and red-hot rock under high pressure. Sometimes these are thrown out violently, through the mouth of a volcano.

Each time a volcano bursts out, hot liquid rolls down the sides and cools into hard rock. Layers of ash and stone fall on the top of the mountain and the steam falls down as rain. Slowly a mountain grows out of the ashes and stones.

- A. Somerset House is a large Neoclassical building situated on the south side of the Strand in central London, overlooking the River Thames, just east of Waterloo Bridge. The Georgian building, which was built on the site of a Tudor palace belonging to the Duke of Somerset. Somerset House stood directly on the River Thames until the Victoria Embankment was built in the late 1860s.
- B. Le Louvre, Paris, France — originally a medieval fortress, became a museum two centuries ago. The museum exterior is world famous due to the pyramid in the main entrance that was added in 1989. The museum's collections are among the most important in the world but the most famous attraction is without a doubt Leonardo da Vinci's 'Mona Lisa'.
- C. The Museo Nacional de Antropología (or National Museum of Anthropology) in Mexico City contains archaeological artifacts from the pre-Columbian heritage of Mexico. Opened in 1964, the museum has a number of significant exhibits, such as the giant stone heads of the Olmec civilization and the Sacred Cenote from Chichen Itza. The most famous artifact however is the Stone of the Sun which was actually not used as a calendar but does contain 20 day signs and the 4 eras of suns that preceded the current 5th sun.
- D. Designed by Frank Gehry, the Guggenheim Museum in Bilbao, Spain is a spectacular twisting titanium-clad modern art museum and perhaps the most celebrated building of the 1990s. The graceful, sensuous curves, remind of the ships that used to be common along the docks of Bilbao, are covered in titanium squares, which resemble the scales of a fish and shimmer in the sunlight. The museum features permanent and visiting exhibits of works by Spanish and international artists.
- E. Smithsonian Institution in Washington is the world's largest research and museum complex. Smithsonian's collection includes 19 museums and galleries, 9 research centres and the National Zoological Park. The National Museum of Natural History, The National Air and Space Museum, The National Museum of American History are the major attractions. The National Museum of African American History and Culture is the only National museum that is entirely dedicated to the African American lifestyle and relationship.
