📘 The story of Ummara

Ummara was a very lazy boy. He lived with his mother, who worked hard sewing clothes, but they had very little money. Ummara did not help her. He did not study, and he often forgot things.

His mother was upset and worried. One day, Ummara was expelled from school because he did not do his work. His mother became very sad, so Ummara decided to change and find a job.

He started working with a painter. Every day, he received something for his work, like a coin, milk, a chicken, or a cat. But each time, Ummara made a mistake:

- He dropped the coin

- He spilled the milk

- The chicken died

- The cat ran away

His mother gave him advice, but he did not always understand it correctly.

Even though Ummara tried to improve, he still made many mistakes. However, he did not give up.

One day, he carried a horse in a funny way, and a prince saw him and laughed for the first time. Everyone was surprised.

1. What was Ummara like at the beginning of the story?

A) Hardworking
B) Lazy
C) Kind
D) Smart

2. Why was Ummara's mother upset?

A) He was sick
B) He helped too much
C) He was lazy and did not study
D) He left home

3. What happened after Ummara left school?

A) He stayed at home
B) He was lazy
C) He went to another school
D) He traveled

4. What problem did Ummara have at work?

A) He worked too fast
B) He made many mistakes
C) He did not like his job
D) He was late every day

5. What is the main lesson of the story?

A) Work is not important
B) Mistakes do not matter
C) Hard work and learning from mistakes are important
D) Money is everything