

Generations, ancestors, farmhouse, meet, fall in love, settle, settle, inherit, inherit, generations, split up

Sam: Hey Mei, I've been thinking about families and _____ lately. Can I ask you a few questions about your family?

Mei: Sure, go ahead!

Sam: First, did your _____ ever tell you any stories about their childhood?

Mei: Yes, they did! My grandfather often told me about how he grew up in a _____. He always mentioned how tough life was back then.

Sam: Wow, that sounds interesting! And, when did your parents _____?

Mei: They met when they were both in college. They _____ right after graduation. They've been married for over 20 years now.

Sam: That's sweet! What about you? Have you thought about _____ down in the future?

Mei: I've definitely thought about it. I'm not sure when, but I do want to _____ down eventually and maybe start a family of my own.

Sam: That sounds great! By the way, did you _____ anything from your great-grandparents?

Mei: Yes, I _____ an old painting from them. It's been passed down through _____. It's one of my most cherished items.

Sam: That's really special! And finally, did your family ever experience any major changes, like a _____?

Mei: Thankfully, no. We've always been a close-knit family, and we've managed to stay together through everything.

Sam: I love hearing about your family, Mei. Thanks for sharing!

Mei: No problem, Sam! It was fun to talk about.