

Name:

Mark:

1. Read the passage and do the tasks below.

Many people assume that video games have negative effects on young people. However, research suggests that playing some types of video games can actually be beneficial. For instance, some games can help children learn how to work together in a team and improve their thinking skills. According to a report in 2013, children who played some kinds of games even got better grades at school. On the other hand, extreme weather like storms and floods can be very dangerous for outdoor activities.

1. What do many people think about video games?

- A. They are always good.
- B. They have negative effects.
- C. They are only for teachers.
- D. They help with weather reports.

2. According to the text, playing games can help children...

- A. avoid doing homework.
- B. learn to work in a team.
- C. become professional athletes.
- D. watch more TV programmes.

3. The 2013 report showed that some gamers...

- A. failed their exams.
- B. got better grades at school.
- C. felt very anxious.
- D. stopped playing games.

2. Read the passage and do the tasks below.

Passage 2: Life on Screen and Our Planet

Today, many teenagers spend a lot of time on their phones, computers, and televisions. They watch videos, play games, and use social media to communicate with friends. Technology makes life more convenient, but it can also create problems if we use it too much. For example, spending many hours online can reduce physical activity and increase stress. Some young people also forget to care about the environment because they are always focused on their screens. However, technology can be helpful if we use it in a responsible way. Many students now use online platforms to learn about environmental problems such as climate change and pollution. They share information, join online campaigns, and encourage others to protect the Earth. In this way, technology can help people take action to save our planet.

Questions 5–7: True / False / Not Given

Write: T = True; F = False; NG = Not Given

- 5. Teenagers today never use technology.
- 6. Using technology too much can cause stress.
- 7. All teenagers care about the environment.

Questions 10–12: Short-Answer Questions

Answer the questions using NO MORE THAN THREE WORDS

- 10. What devices do teenagers often use to watch videos?
- 11. Name one environmental problem mentioned in the passage.
- 12. What should people protect according to the passage?