Unit 3-4 Written Assessment

A. Read the passage and then answer the questions.

Being stranded on a deserted island can be a scary and overwhelming experience, but it is important to remember that there are steps you can take to increase your chances of survival. Here are some tips on how to survive on a deserted island:

1. Stay calm: It is important to keep a clear head and not panic. Panicking will only make the situation worse and can lead to poor decision making.
2. Find shelter: Protect yourself from the sun, rain, and wind by building a shelter. Use materials such as palm leaves or branches to make a roof, and use sand or rocks to make a wall.
3. Find fresh water: Look for sources of fresh water such as a stream or river. If you can't find a source of fresh water, try to catch rainwater by placing a container under a leafy tree or by digging a hole in the ground.
4. Find food: Look for fruits and berries that are safe to eat. You can also try to catch fish or other sea animals by using a sharp stick or by trapping them in a circle of rocks.
5. Make a signal fire: Make a signal fire on the beach to attract the attention of passing ships or planes. Use dry leaves and branches to start the fire and keep it burning.
6. Stay together: If you are stranded with other people, stay together. This will increase your chances of survival and provide emotional support.
7. Stay positive: Keep a positive attitude and hope for the best. This will help you stay motivated and focused on survival.
8. Keep yourself busy: Try to keep yourself busy by exploring the island, making tools, or keeping a diary. This will help to pass the time and keep your mind occupied.

It is important to remember that being stranded on a deserted island is a rare and unlikely event. However, it is always important to be prepared with some basic survival skills. With the right attitude and approach, you can increase your chances of survival.
