The Museum of Fine Arts

The Museum of Fine Arts (0) on Boston recently reopened an artefact which is believed to be first buried in 1795. It was removed from below the Massachusetts State House and is said to be America's (1) older time capsule. It was originally placed under a cornerstone by one of the founding fathers of the United States, Samuel Adams, and (2) a American Revolution patriot, Paul Revere. It was planted (3) where construction of the state Capital (4) commences. The museum officials say that the time capsule is a small box (5) weighs 4.5 kg. Among the items found inside it were silver and copper coins dating from 1652 (6) and 1855, an engraved silver plate, a copper medal, newspapers, paper impression (7) for the Seal of the Commonwealth, business cards (8) or a title page from the Massachusetts Colony Records.
