PART II: READING COMPREHENSION

Exercise 4. Read the text and do the tasks below.

Smart Cities and Secret Codes In the future, our community will have many smart machines. Humanoid robots will work in factories, and robot waiters will serve delicious food. But a smart city also has secret codes to help our amazing body, especially our brain!

For example, at a busy crosswalk, there is often a big red button for people who want to cross the street. Sometimes, this button doesn't actually change the traffic lights faster. So why is it there? When you stand and wait for a long time, you might feel angry. Pressing the button tricks your brain into thinking you are finding a solution. It makes your muscles relax and helps you feel calm. It's a brilliant way to keep everyone in the city patient and safe.

A. Choose True (T), False (F), or Doesn't Say (DS).

1. In the future, humanoid robots will cook food in your house. (___)
2. Some buttons at the crosswalk do not make the lights change faster. (___)
3. Pressing the button makes your brain feel stressed and angry. (___)
4. The big red button is a kind of secret code for your brain. (___)
