Having a baby is perhaps one of the (23) joyous experiences in life. For first-time parents, however, feelings of joy are often mixed with fear and panic.

What parents need from their friends at such a time is support and practical help. Offer to make your own cup of coffee and (24) the washing up while you're waiting for the kettle to boil. Bring food, perhaps even meals you've prepared which can then be put in the freezer.

Whatever you do, (25) there! Remember a new parent's attention is completely focused (26) their baby. Ask if there's any washing to hang out, hovering to be done or milk to be bought, then offer to do it. If you're planning a day to the shops, invite new parents to (27) with you. They'll welcome the chance to get out of the house and (28) part of the real world again.
