Come for a visit. I'll show you my city!

Jom Palao

People sometimes say to me, "You speak English so well." I tell them, "I practice with native speakers," but I don't tell them that I make money while I practice! How do I do it?

It all started when I joined a tourism website and became a tour guide. Here's how it works: People from all over the world can sign up for tours with me directly. That keeps the prices low for the tourists. And I don't pay anything to have my name on the site!

The people on the site want to see the usual tourist attractions, like museums and monuments, but they also want to see the places that ordinary tourists never see. I can show them. When I give tours of my city, Bangkok, I take visitors to restaurants and shops that only Thai people visit. We check out interesting neighborhoods where they can talk to local people and eat local food.

Can you guess my visitors' favorite activity? Eating! We visit markets and my favorite little restaurants. They look around, and everyone else is Thai. That really makes their visit special. Their interest in Thai food gave me an idea: cooking lessons! So, last year my mother and I offered cooking lessons for the first time. Well, my mother cooks, and I explain everything in English. The classes are now more popular than my tours. Every class is full. Maybe next I will offer Thai dancing lessons!
