Topic: Oversharing Personal Information on Social Media

Oversharing is a scary thing. As a result, you should take a moment to think before posting something to prevent the consequences. A lot of oversharing is done in 'the spur of the moment' situation. You can avoid having too much information about yourself broadcast on the web entirely if you're more cautious about what you say and do online. If you're still tempted, consider using an alias instead of your real identity on social media platforms. It's also important to keep in mind that online information will always be 'out there' in some form or another. As a result, be cautious about the information you can choose to reveal about yourself with the rest of the world.

When you post something online, it can stay there indefinitely because people may snap screenshots, record it, or save it.

Oversharing is a scary thing.

Although people say and post things they later forget, these tidbits remain in cyberspace, where they can be seen and shared by everyone.

If you're still tempted, consider using an alias instead of your real identity on social media platforms.

Social Media & Its Impacts

The increased conflicts and online propaganda on social media recently have raised the negative impacts on society such as violence and conflicts. As for Nierkerk's research on social media in 2013, social media was utilized to convey disorders, conflicts and violence, within riots in Greece and England. There as number of theasee inferencing riots as achence eneace trapers, discrimination, political aspect and marginalization excludent.

Social media is violent. They can be a medium to spread harassment, stalking and sexual victimization both online and offline. The re- is limited research to indicate that increased number of hours on social media correlates directly with aggressive behavior. but there is literature that connects certain types of internet use to increased aggressive behavior. For example, the quality.

of online exposure may be corributory; youths who perpetrated serious crimes, were significantly more ligely to have viewed violent online content. Moreover, also sim the way media coverage coverage suicide act as a- gention for "copycat" suicides, there inat also ac- vidence to corporat violence- may be increased.

To prevent the gveat risk of social media, parents, teachers - or responsible adults - therefore, must do comething by explaining the tru consequences of violence.
