

Last night, before you went to bed, you heard a knocking on your window. You opened it to find a short-eared owl (the one that migrates south) waiting to give you some important life advice and share all the details about their migratory journey. What did the owl tell you? What was their trip like until they reached your window? What might happen if you try to put its advice into practice and why?

Write a letter to a friend of yours trying to share this amazing experience!

You might use the links uploaded on parentblog to see the route the short-eared owls follow when they migrate!

- Think about:
- what this life advice was about
 - what their trip was like
 - the way you reacted
 - your thoughts and feelings
 - what your plans are after the owl's advice

- Check:
- capital letters & full stops
 - your spelling in a dictionary
 - you used adjectives

Lined writing area with a vertical red margin line on the right side.